DIVIDING COUNTY NEWSPAPER TALK

In the issue of the Times of the 2nd inst an article which states "In a quiet way that indicates grim determination" there is a move on foot to make two counties out of Mendocino. The Times vouchsafes the information that the coast people are dissatisfied and want the division and even goes so far as to indicate where the imaginary lines bounding the new county will pass. The only condition necessary to form new counties according to the Times is to get a 65 per cent vote in the proposed new county.

The whole article is in keeping with much of the stuff found in that paper and appears merely an attempt to stir up strife between the coast and the valleys. I live on the coast and have heard no such talk regarding the division of the county and the substantial men of the coast would not consider such a proposition for a dozen different reasons. Furthermore if they did they would have better sense than to tell it to the fellow who is running the Times.

The reason however that makes the consideration of such a problem impossible is the statutes of 1907 regarding the formation of new counties. If the busybody who wrote the article had taken a look at the statutes he would have been saved the humiliation of having to take water. The following is an extract from the statute. Try and figure how a division of Mendocino county could be made under it.

Chapter 227, Section 1, Statutes of 1907—New counties may, from time to time, be formed and created in this state from portions of one or more old counties already in existence, in the manner set forth in this act; provided however, that no new counties shall be established which shall reduce any county to a population of less than 25,000, nor shall any new county be formed containing a less population than 6,000; * * * Nor shall any new county be formed which shall reduce to less than 1200 square miles the area of any existing county from which territory is taken to form such new county. * * *

Mendocino, Feb 15, 1908. COASTER.

A Matinee Party

Miss Veta White, assisted by her mother, Miss Adeline Deering and Miss Ethel Bartlett, entertained about sixty of her schoolmates a matinee party Saturday afternoon. The little tots gathered at the residence and were taken to the dining room where an old fashioned well draped with crape paper and valentines greeted them. Each selected a valentine and had a refreshing drink from the well which contained fruit punch. After light refreshments had been served the party adjourned to the Central where special arrangements had been made for the party to witness the pictures.

BODY OF LOST BOY FOUND BY FATHER

The body of Theodore Lauhle was found about noon last Saturday by Ed Wentworth and the father of the deceased, about two miles from home and about a half a mile west of the signal pole. The deceased had started from home on a hunting trip on the 22nd of January just before the heavy snow storm. His dog had returned 15 days later but could not be induced to return to the corpse. Search parties had been out nearly every day since.

The body was just below the trail and the remains of a deer were lying near on the snow. His rifle was empty and the lunch he had taken was untouched. From this it is thought he had killed a deer and started for home Friday night and that he had suddenly been stricken and died. The face was scratched a little probably by the dog in trying to wake his master. The deer had evidently been on his back but it is supposed that in eating the deer and tugging at the carcass the dog had pulled the body from the trail and finally pulled the carcass from his back.

The snow showed where the faithful dog had made his beds and there was a trail to the gulch below worn by the dog in his daily trips to water. Ed Wentworth and another neighbor staid with the body Saturday night and about half a mile of trail had to be brushed out before the body could be gotten out. The funeral was held from the Catholic church Monday afternoon.

SAXAPHONE BOYS PLEASE AUDIENCE

The Saxaphone quartet gave the third number of the Lyceum program at the Presbyterian church Monday night to a crowded house, Rev Dickie having disposed of over 300 tickets. The quartet was well received and the applause was generous their comic songs driving dull care entirely out of the house. The reader was one of the best that has ever visited Ukiah and although she rendered several numbers everyone would have liked to hear her again. There are two numbers yet to come which are reported to be even better than those that have already been here. The proceeds of the entertainments are for the benefit of the building fund of the church.

HOLMAN-HOPKINS NUPTIALS

R Morris Holman and Esther Grace Hopkins were married in Palo Alto last Monday. Mr Holman is the son of a prominent lawyer of Pittsburg and was former Professor of Botany in the Stanford University. For the past year he has been principal of the high school at Hoquian, Washington. Miss Hopkins is a talented young lady having studied music and art at the University of the Pacific at San Jose.

The happy couple passed through town Tuesday on their way to Potter Valley and will spend a few days with the bride's parents, Dr and Mrs Hopkins, before sailing to the Philippines where Mr Holman has a fine government position. They expect to remain there two years and then go to Germany where Mr Holman will continue his study of botany.

GANTER ANKER NUPTIALS.

At 10 o'clock last Sunday morning Carl T Ganter and Miss Amelia Anker were quietly united in marriage at the home of the bride. Rev Paul R Dickie of the Presbyterian church performing the ceremony. The parlors were beautifully decorated and the relatives together with a few friends were present. After congratulations and the viewing of the many magnificient gifts the party marched to the home of Louis Anker where as a welcome surprise, a long table extending the full length of the house was loaded with a glorious dinner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Neil Anker of this city and the groom is a properous young hardware man. They both have hosts of friends who wish them all the joys of a long and happy wedded life. After spending their honeymoon in the south they will return to this city where they will make their home.

Dog Case Non Suited

C A Edwards and wife, Matt Edwards and J A Cummiskey and wife of Preston and Mrs Roberts of Cloverdale were in this city Wednesday as witnesses in the case of B H McLaughlin against Cummiskey. It seems that Cummiskey's dog attacked McLaughlin some time since and tore his pants off and put him in line for a $25 doctor bill Cummiskey had signs up to "Beware of the dog," and claimed that was sufficient. McLaughlin claimed he was being as 'beware' as he could when the dog copped him. Cummiskey loaned him a pair of overalls and a safety-pin to get to the next town with Judge White granted the defendant's motion for a non-suit after the plaintiff had put in his testimony, and Cummiskey and his witness did not even get to tell how it happened.

UKIAH VALLEY CAN NOW BE IRRIGATED

The very important news has come to our knowledge, that if desired by the farmers of Ukiah valley, the Snow Mountain Water and Power Company is ready to furnish water sufficient to irrigate several thousand acres of land, if the land owner will meet the company half-way. As is well known, the company has turned a large amount of water through the tunnel at the head of Potter valley and thence into Russian river.

At the upper end of Potter valley the company has arranged to supply farmers who desire water, and the same will be taken from the canal; the farmers will dig their own ditches and water will cost them $3.00 per acre. At Coyote valley the power company will jointly build a ditch near the line of the old Cleveland mill ditch, and to a point near the old mill. Here the water will be flumed across the river near Riverside and will be available for all who can use it in Coyote valley. As at Potter valley the land owners will construct all ditches and laterals and pay for the water by the acre. It is doubtless open to the farmers of Ukiah valley to secure water in the same way. If for instance a large pump were installed a little above the Levaggi garden on the east side of the river, a short flume or pipe would carry it to a ditch on a level to swing around all of the rich lands on the John P Hoffman ranch, thence around the Bartlett ranch, the Asylum farm and from there practically the entire lower valley. A branch from the starting point would cover McKinley's, Clark's, Holliday's etc. Such a system would traverse lands capable of the highest tillage and would double values Farms would be cut up in tracts of from ten to forty acres, intensive dairying and truck gardening would be possible and a new era would open for our valley.

A similar system on the west side of the valley could cover the land from Ackerman creek south.

To avail themselves of such an opportunity the farmers would have to form an association to own rights of way, dig ditches, and supervise the distribution of the water. With only level lands to cover, ditch digging would be easy and if water can be had as low as $3.00 per acre, irrigating as an investment is a mine for any land owner.

Auto Stage Line Discussed

A meeting of the business men of the town was held Monday night to discuss the automobile stage proposition and adjournment was taken to tonight when the citizens will meet some of the representatives of Witter springs. It is to be hoped that the line will be put through as it would be of inestimable benefit to Ukiah.

OLD RESIDENT IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs Caroline S Rice died at her home at Little River, Feb 13, 1909. Last August she fell and fractured her hip, since that time she has been confined to her bed, going into a general decline, until death came as a relief to her. Caroline S Coombs was born in Whitefield, Lincoln Co, Maine, May 23, 1833. In the summer of 1864, she came to California, and since that time has made her home at Littleriver.

In the early 70's she was married to James B Rice, a pioneer of the coast section. One son, James C survives her, the husband and father having preceded her to the grave some years Besides her son, she leaves two small grandsons, two sisters, Mrs Elizabeth Pullen and Mrs Ann T Stickney of Ukiah, and one brother, R G Coombs of Littleriver. She was laid to rest in the Littleriver cemetery last Monday, and so has passed a good friend to those in need, a kind neighbor, and a true Christian mother.

Raffling a Touring Car

Arthur Pratt is raffling off his White steamer touring car and is figuring on putting on a new machine for hire. Tickets are $1 each and are going well. Here will be a chance for some fellow to win an automobile in time to get in a good summer's enjoyment.

Booze and Knives Cause Trouble

Jinks Feliz cut William Brown in a drunken brawl at Covelo last week. Feliz was bound over to the superior court under $1500 bail and being unable to furnish that amount was brought to this city by Constable Jamison and lodged in jail. Both are Indians.

INSANE PATIENTS ARE DEPORTED BY US

As a result of the recent investigation of the state hospitals made by the immigration commissioners Uncle Sam is deporting all of the insane patients who are not legally entitled to a residence in this country, but who have been committed to hospitals. Charles Roller in charge of six patients from the Mendocino state hospital left Wednesday for San Francisco where patients from the other hospitals in the state will join them.

It is understood that there will be five patients from Napa and five from Stockton. The patients from the other institutions will also be accompanied by attendants and all will travel in a special car. The first stop will be at Texas where one of the patients will be turned over to the immigration officials to be sent to Mexico. They will then proceed to New York where the patients will all be turned over to the the immigration commission. Two of the patients from here will go to Canada, two to Ireland and two to Italy.

Charley is to be congratulated on his good fortune in getting the trip. All of his expenses are paid and he will be able to take things easy on the way home.

Mendocino Oranges and Lemons

C A Edwards dropped into the office Wednesday and presented the editor with a fine spray of oranges and another of lemons. They came from his ranch at Preston just inside the southern boundary of Mendocino county. They are fine looking and fine flavored and much better than the Cloverdale fruit. Mr Edwards has a number of trees and they bear well. He says that there is not a day in the year that he cannot go out and get ripe lemons. Incidentially Mr Edwards and his brother have one of the finest vineyards in the state

Miss Haun Won Prize

Miss Jeanette Haun, matron of the state hospital, was the fortunate holder of the winning ticket for the $250 cash prize given by Henry Marks to his customers. This was the largest cash prize ever offered in this city and proved a great drawing card. Henry Marks, the genial proprietor, says that nothing is too good for his patrons and announces that he is receiving the most complete line of spring and summer goods ever seen in this city.

The Mystery of The Yellow Room

ing to his bed. And, in fact, I did fear something.

"Q. You were so much in fear of something that you borrowed Daddy Jacques' revolver without telling him you had done so? A. That is true. I did not wish to alarm anybody, the more because my fears might have proved to have been foolish.

"Q. What was it you feared? A. I hardly know how to tell you. For several nights I seemed to hear, both in the park and out of the park, around the pavilion, unusual sounds, sometimes footsteps, at other times the cracking of branches. The night before the attack on me, when I did not get to bed before 3 o'clock in the morning, on our return from the Elysee I stood for a moment before my window, and I felt sure I saw shadows.

"Q. How many? A. Two. They moved round the lake. Then the moon became clouded, and I lost sight of them. At this time of the season every year I have generally returned to my apartment in the chateau for the winter, but this year I said to myself that I would not quit the pavilion before my father had finished the resume of his works on the 'Dissociation of Matter' for the academy. I did not wish that that important work, which was to have been finished in the course of a few days, should be delayed by a change in our daily habit. You can well understand that I did not wish to speak of my childish fears to my father, nor did I say anything to Daddy Jacques, who, I knew, would not have been able to hold his tongue. Knowing that he had a revolver in his room, I took advantage of his absence and borrowed it, placing it in the drawer of my night table.

"Q. You know of no enemies you have? A. None.

"Q. You understand, mademoiselle, that these precautions are calculated to cause surprise?

"M. Stangerson—Evidently, my child, such precautions are very surprising.

"A. No, because I have told you that I had been uneasy for two nights.

"M. Stangerson—You ought to have told me of that. This misfortune would have been avoided.

"Q. The door of the yellow room locked, did you go to bed? A. Yes, and, being very tired, I at once went to sleep.

"Q. The night light was still burning? A. Yes, but it gave a very feeble light.

"Q. Then, mademoiselle, tell us what happened. A. I do not know whether I had been long asleep, but suddenly I awoke and uttered a loud cry.

"M. Stangerson—Yes, a horrible cry, 'Murder.' It still rings in my ears.

"Q. You uttered a loud cry? A. A man was in my chamber. He sprang at me and tried to strangle me. I was nearly stifled when suddenly I was able to reach the drawer of my night table and grasp the revolver which I had placed in it. At that moment the man had forced me to the foot of my bed and brandished over my head a sort of mace. But I had fired. He immediately struck a terrible blow at my head. All that, monsieur, passed more rapidly than I can tell it, and I know nothing more.

"Q. Nothing? Have you no idea as to how the assassin could escape from your chamber? A. None whatever. I know nothing more. One does not know what is passing around one when one is unconscious.

"Q. Was the man you saw tall or short, little or big? A. I saw only a shadow which appeared to me formidable.

"Q. You cannot give us any indication? A. I know nothing more, monsieur, than that a man threw himself upon me and that I fired at him. I know nothing more."

Here the interrogation of Mlle. Stangerson concluded.

Rouletabille waited patiently for M. Robert Darzac, who soon appeared.

From a room near the chamber of Mlle. Stangerson he had heard the interrogatory and now came to recount it to my friend with great exactitude, aided by an excellent memory. His docility still surprised me. Thanks to hasty pencil notes, he was able to reproduce almost textually the questions and the answers given.

It looked as if M. Darzac were being employed as the secretary of my young friend and acted as if he could refuse him nothing—nay, more, as if under a compulsion to do so.

The fact of the closed window struck the reporter as it had struck the magistrate. The circumstance of the dinner in the laboratory also seemed to interest him in the highest degree,

Comptche Pioneer Dies

Charles H Oppenlander of Comptche died at Mendocino at 5 o'clock a m at the home of George A Daniels, from heart failure Thursday. Mr Oppenlander had been staying in town for the last ten days and while not in robust health was not considered as being very sick. He had been about town the evening before and his decease came as a surprise. Particulars of the life of deceased will appear next week. The funeral will be held here Sunday afternoon.—Beacon.

The gentleman who was at Fort Bragg a short time ago looking for a place where he could install a wireless station returned again last week. After several unsuccessful attempts to reach San Francisco and Eureka from the flag pole on Main street he went up to Bald Hill. Here he succeeded in obtaining a message from Eureka, but all efforts to reach San Francisco failed.—Beacon

Scott & Magner quote the hay market as firm and strong with no signs of weakening anywhere along the line. Choice wheat hay is listed at $19 to $23 a ton, and alfalfa is bringing $13.50 to $18. This firm reports the largest seeded area to hay it has ever known and the outlook for a big yield the coming year is very good.—Beacon.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF MENDOCINO County State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Margaret Deveron deceased.

Order to show cause why order of sale of real estate should not be made.

Martin Hart, Administrator of the Estate of Margaret Deveron, Deceased, having on the 5th day of February, 1909, presented and filed in the above entitled matter, his verified petition for an order of sale of the real property of said decedent, said real property being situate in Alameda County, California, known as lots 1 and 2 Block 12 Warner Tract, Brooklyn Township, Elmhurst; and it appearing to the Court from said petition that it is necessary to sell the real property set out in said petition as prayed for therein, for the purpose of paying the debts outstanding, the debts, expenses and charges of administration which have accrued and which will or may accrue:

It is therefore ordered by the Hon J Q White, Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said Margaret Deveron, Deceased, appear before the said Superior Court on Monday the 15th day of March, 1909, at ten o clock A. M. of said day, at the Court Room in the Court House in the Town of Ukiah City, County of Mendocino, State of California, then and there to show cause why an order should not be made and granted to the said Administrator directing him to sell the real property described in said petition, at private sale, for the purposes set out in said petition.

It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published for four successive weeks prior to said March 15, 1909 in the Republican Press, a weekly newspaper published and printed in said Mendocino County, State of California.

Dated this February 5th, 1909.

TIRING OUT THE STAG

A "Deer Take" In England's Oldest Deer Park.

HOUNDED UNTIL HE GASPS.

The Game Animal Is Mercilessly Driven Hither and Yon, Through Lake and Wood, Until He Falls Exhausted, Though Undaunted.

Parts of certain great parks in England, such as Eridge park, the oldest deer park in the kingdom, are kept practically wild in their original forest state, while near to the castle is the cultivated home park. Eridge park contains 3,000 acres and is the only estate in England, with one exception, where deer taking with hounds is still carried on. Eridge park once formed part of the royal chase. It still retains the wild beauty it then had, although there are more than seventy miles of lovely drives in it, not counting those of the home park.

Deer taking is entirely different from deer hunting. The object is to take the animals alive so that they may be transferred to the home park to be fattened and eventually turned into venison.

The sport is by no means as tame as it sounds. A seven to nine year old red deer is an awkward customer to tackle. He is powerful, agile and well armed with antlers and hoofs.

When there is to be a deer taking at Eridge park the meet is planned for 11 o'clock at the park keeper's house. The underkeepers, with fresh hounds, are scattered through the park to head off the stag should he come their way.

The underkeepers having spread themselves over the park, the park keeper, with the "field" (those following mounted and on foot) set off to find a deer which looks ready for fattening purposes. Having selected one, it is the work of the keeper to get him separated from the rest and then to slip his hound and set after him as hard as we can gallop. The pace, of course, is tremendous, and as rabbit holes abound the risk of a fall is even betting or, rather, a trifle of odds on the certainty of our "taking a toss." As our deer bounds away with his wonderfully easy, elastic movements he makes for the wildest part of the park, expecting to escape his pursuers.

In one place after another he is met with hidden keepers and fresh hounds, till with the instinct of his species he turns to what he thinks is his sanctuary—the lakes. With open mouth and tongue outhanging he plunges a good fifteen feet into the water and swims for the opposite bank. Gasping and tiring, he lands on what he hopes is freedom from his pursuers. But, alas, no! Yet another fresh hound is after him. What can he do? He is too pumped with his already hard burst to face the hill before him.

He turns around and tears down through the bracken with a hound on each side of him, ready to pull him down if they get but half a chance. It is a dingdong race, under trees, through bogs and bracken, up and down dells and breaks, smashing headlong through everything, anything, to reach the shelter of the friendly water once again. With a mighty spring he is in again. For a moment there is breathing space, for now the keepers and hounds, yet some way off, are making for the poor beast, which is in the middle of the lake. Away he swims with graceful movement of his noble head, glancing all around at his pursuers, but with his mind fixed on his line of retreat. He reaches the shore, and, with dripping sides, he is out upon the bank.

Again he makes an effort to baffle and leave behind those clinging hounds that would bear him down. And now two great hounds are stretching themselves out to their utmost pace. Side by side they race after their tiring quarry; in another minute they will have him. The stag, however, manages to make a spurt, though he is now stiffening rapidly, and just reaches some park palings surrounding the big lake.

In an instant he has turned on his pursuers, and with head down and upraised fore leg he is prepared to fight to the death. A hound rushes in, but in a twinkling he is on his back, hurled away like a piece of wood. This checks the other hound, which dodges and bays around the stag. Seeing that things are now getting a bit too warm for him, the stag suddenly turns round and, smashing the palings like match wood, finds himself again in the icy water of the big lake. Away and away he swims, up this long stretch, the water seeming to revive him, for he swims the eastern length, three-quarters of a mile, and then lands at the far end while we follow on the shore. He swims till his feet touch the ground and stands facing us.

All we can do now is to end the situation as speedily as possible. A keeper deftly throws a rope with a loose knot over the stag's antlers. In a moment four burly keepers are hauling him out by the ropes. It is now a slow march to his feeding ground in the home park. Slowly the procession moves, never a slackening of the rope or the hold on the antlers. Through the gate dividing the parks he is brought, an unwilling prisoner, though undaunted. This ends the deer taking. —Town and Country.

FIRST NIGHTS.

The Way They Affected Some Famous French Playwrights.

The first night with authors is viewed with different feelings. This is how it affected some famous French playwrights. Sardou's nervousness was well known. Dumas fils was never able to preserve his sangfroid. As soon as the curtain rose Dumas pere would betake himself to a restaurant and dine from as many courses as his new piece had acts. His son reported on the success of the piece. At the first representation of "Toussaint Louverture" Lamartine found his work so tedious that he went to a cafe and read the papers. Balzac when he produced "Resources de Quinola" spent the day in selling tickets at a rate higher than at the box office and reaped a fine return.

Paul de Kock, seated in the orchestra, we also read, protested against his piece and made so much noise that his neighbors demanded silence. Casimir Delavigne remained at home. Alexandre Soumet went to be shaved when "Jeanne d'Arc" was produced. The barber had finished one cheek when the author cried: "Stop! Here are 30 sous. Go round to the theater and see if they hiss or applaud the piece." The barber returned, saying: "It is a success, monsieur. They applaud." "Since it is a success," replied the author, "shave the other." Scribe appeared in the best of spirits and encouraged the actors, but at the end he became nervous and tore his handkerchief with his teeth. Rossini walked about the back of the stage with his cane in his hand. Auber was never present on the first night of his works, and Bayard on reaching the stage is reported to have said that he experienced sudden illness.—New York Mail.

THE OLD SAIL DRILL

Perils the Modern Warship Men Do Not Have to Face.

One of the dangers and one of the hardest tasks of the man-of-war's man vanished out of his life when, with the supplanting of the frigate by the steam cruiser, the old time sail drill became a thing of the past. Fleets in the old days were continually exercised in making and shortening sail, shifting spars and all similar maneuvers aloft, says Captain J. W. Gambler of the British navy in his "Links In My Life." As the greatest rivalry existed among the crews as to which ship should carry out the evolution first accidents were frequent. Hardly a drill day passed without men being seriously injured.

Once during a drill in Kiel harbor, where the rivalry in the fleet was increased by the eagerness of foreign ships to compete with the English, an unfortunate French midshipman went head first from the mizzen crosstrees of the French flagship to the deck.

That numbers of accidents should take place in sail drill was not astonishing when one remembers that spars measuring perhaps seventy or eighty feet long and weighing two or three tons were whisked about with bewildering speed with nothing but men's hands and brains to guide them; hundreds of men crammed into a space of a few hundred square feet, where nothing but the most marvelous organization and discipline could avert death on deck or aloft.

To the landsman, who understood nothing of the difficulty involved in rapidly shifting these great masts and yards or in reeling and furling thousands of square feet of stiff canvas—perhaps wet or half frozen—the rapidity with which it was done was perhaps the chief wonder.

Ropes, running like lightning through blocks that were instantly too hot from friction to be touched, had to be checked to within a few inches, requiring the utmost coolness and presence of mind, while the officer in command had to superintend what to the uninitiated looked like a tangled mass of cordage, but which was in reality no more in confusion than the threads in a loom.

In an instant this officer might see something going wrong. To delay a single second meant a terrible catastrophe. Every one, alow and aloft, was relying on his judgment.

"Belay! Ease away!"

The order came in an instant. The boatswain's mates repeated it in a particular call which this life and death necessity soon taught every one to understand, the shrill whistles rising above the din of tramping feet and running ropes or the thunderous crash of the great sails in the wind. Death had been averted—or not. If not you looked up and saw some unfortunate man turning head over heels in the air. Your heart stood still. Would he catch hold of something, even if only to break his fall, or would he come battering on the deck? It was a mere toss up. If he was killed outright it generally stopped the drill for the day; if he was only seriously injured the drill went on, for this was part of the lesson that must be learned—that in peace, as in war, one must take his chances.

Ir-Mu-L-Co

UKIAH, Feb 17—The above is the name of the school district, a new one, just born, and at the christening, the name which it is to bear, was applied. The initials of a large corporation dealing in lumber and general merchandise were taken to form the word, "Irvine-Muir Lumber Company."

Whoever is responsible for trying this name on one of our public schools, should have certain other initials, indicating want of good taste, and good sense substituted for his name.

Why not call it "Irvine district" or "Muir district?" Both these gentlemen are well identified with the section of country in which the school is situated, and the name "Irmulco" is neither Indian, Spanish, Japanese or American, is entirely lacking rythm, or euphony and suggests nothing educational, historical or geographical. It has an aroma of commercialism. The school superintendent and the supervisors should be fined six months salary for permitting such an outlandish title to be glued on to a public school.

There are myriads of names to be found among our native flowers and trees—in our local geography—among our leading educators; among the long line of our presidents, and why not have chosen one of them? This district was named during the month in which occured the 10th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birthday, how appropriate would have been "Lincoln school district!"

It occurred during the month of Washington's birthday and how fitting it would be to have a "Washington school district!" There is neither one in the county. Should this objectionable plan become a preferred one, see what could and might occur! We would have for Hardy Creek Lumber Co, "Hacrelco;" Fort Bragg, "Unluco;" Caspar, "Caluco;" Big River, "Menluco;" Albion, "Alluco;" Greenwood, "Lewhiluco;" Gualala, "Emluco," and so on, giving us a sort of jargon more insipid than the Esperanto reform!

The answer will be, perhaps, to mind our own business, should we suggest a change, but is it not everybody's business to prevent, if possible, any of our public school disticts going down into history with such a name! We will suggest, however, that the name be changed at the first opportunity, and that it receive the name of one of the greatest and best in American History, "Lincoln school district." Imagine a child telling about what district school he attends!

The names applied to our public schools should suggest history, patriotism, geography locality, flowers, trees, fauna, or any other title in a similar strain, but not a name that suggests commercialism and nothing else, and that must have an interpreter along even to ascertain that.

Ukiah, Feby 16, 1909.

Fisherman Pleaded Guilty

The State vs Raymond case in which Raymond is charged with catching steel head salmon, came up in the justice court yesterday and was bound over to the superior court. J L Case, who was charged with Raymond and who intended to make the test case with Raymond, backed down and pleaded guilty and paid his fine. Roy Heacock, representing the California Fish and Game Commission, came up Friday afternoon and after the trial gave an impromptu lecture on the subject. Mr Heacock is a very genial gentleman and tried his best to show the people where the fish commission was doing the county good and listened with patience to the complaints made by our citizens He contends that there are at least two classes of salmon in our streams, the black salmon and the steel heads and he talked at length on the question of stee heads and declared his willingness to show the fishermen the difference between the two kinds of salmon. He says that there is now a bill at the legislature concerning the fish laws and that probably there will be a change made this session.—Little Lake Herald.

High Water At Covelo

The new bridge over the east fork of Eel river, near Covelo, was nearly washed out during the recent high water the bridge has only been built about a year now and was put fifteen feet above high water mark.
